

July 29, 2013

Ian Cooke

Publicity

Minimum Wage Entertainment

MINIMUM WAGE ENTERTAINMENT ANNOUNCES TWO NEW WEB SERIES CURRENTLY IN PRODUCTION

Minimum Wage Entertainment (www.mw-entertainment.com) will be releasing two new web series in 2014.

WARNE is the story of a woman who decides to pursue her life's dream of becoming a detective. It will star actress/comedian Kelly Warne (CASTERS). Written and created by Warne and Erin Gould (writer/creator of CASTERS and head of Minimum Wage Entertainment). Gould said 'It's a show about someone taking the leap to become the thing she's always needed to be. We've come up with a great angle to the theme of someone finding themselves and also, we have Kelly who is a brilliant actress and funny as hell so...that doesn't hurt.'

WARNE goes into production by the end of the year to be aired sometime early next year.

The second series is being written by Erin Gould and Greg Tulonen (head writer of RAGGED ISLE) to begin production early next year for a summer 2014 release. No word on a title or plot description but when asked, Gould said "I think anyone who has a love of some of Spielberg's earlier films and the political thrillers of the 1970s will definitely enjoy this show."

ABOUT ERIN GOULD & MINIMUM WAGE ENTERTAINMENT

Erin Gould is the writer/director of the critically-acclaimed web series CASTERS. As well as writing and directing, he is a musician, photographer, editor and about a dozen other things that he can't think of right now.

Minimum Wage Entertainment was founded to be an independent studio that can assist filmmakers in telling their stories and getting them out to the world.